

Psalm 2
Church of the Open Bible / 09.22.13 / Will Groben

Narrator: ¹Why are the nations in an uproar
 And the peoples devising a vain thing?

²The kings of the earth take their stand
And the rulers take counsel together

Pagan rulers: Against the LORD and against His Anointed, saying,
³“Let us tear their fetters apart and cast away their cords from us!”

Narrator: ⁴He who sits in the heavens laughs,
 The Lord scoffs at them.

⁵Then He will speak to them in His anger
And terrify them in His fury, saying,

God: ⁶“But as for Me, I have installed My King
 Upon Zion, My holy mountain.”

Anointed King: ⁷“I will surely tell of the decree of the LORD: He said to Me,
God: ‘You are My Son, today I have begotten You.

⁸Ask of Me, and I will surely give the nations as Your inheritance,
And the very ends of the earth as Your possession.

⁹You shall break them with a rod of iron,
You shall shatter them like earthenware.””

Narrator: ¹⁰Now therefore, O kings, show discernment;
 Take warning, O judges of the earth.

¹¹Worship the LORD with reverence
And rejoice with trembling.

¹²Do homage to the Son, that He not become angry, and you
 perish in the way,
For His wrath may soon be kindled.
How blessed are all who take refuge in Him!

Hebrew poetry is written in a form called parallelism. Essentially it is written in couplets, two or sometimes three lines that are related in meaning. In English poetry, the two lines usually would rhyme, but in Hebrew that was not important. What was important was their relationship to each other. Herein, I have organized the psalm into couplets, and put a line under every third verse because we will discuss them three at a time. I also have put in the left margin who is speaking.
